Download Links A: You are attempting to activate a trial version which has a limited number of rendering hours so far. Look for a small window that pops up when you start the application. It will tell you how many rendering hours you have left. If you don't want to utilize the trial version's limited number of renders, then pay for it. As to getting a license key to work with your trial version, you must pay a $80 license fee. After doing so, you can save the license key in a file with your other software and then connect your software to the SimLab software to make use of the keys.
